

❖ Knights of the Raj ❖

The Story of Birmingham's Bangladeshi-owned Indian Restaurants

23 SEPTEMBER 2017 - 7 JANUARY 2018

A MAJOR NEW EXHIBITION
BIRMINGHAM MUSEUM & ART GALLERY

FREE ENTRY

Birmingham is home to hundreds of Indian restaurants, but most are unaware that it was the Bangladeshi community that pioneered 'Curry Culture' in Britain.

The Knights of the Raj exhibition captures the untold stories of those pioneers, tracing the origins of the Birmingham curry trade back to the 1940's.

The exhibition features rare photographs, unique artefacts, videos, interactive displays and oral histories that tell the fascinating story of the much-loved British Curry.

22 SEPTEMBER 2017 | 7.00pm

LAUNCH DINNER & PERFORMANCE

BIRMINGHAM MUSEUM & ART GALLERY
EDWARDIAN TEA ROOMS

TICKETS £25 (Includes 3 Course Meal)

This event will transform the Edwardian Tea Rooms into a bustling Indian Restaurant for a one-off extravaganza of live action dramatic re-enactments - bringing to life the stories of the real 'Knights of the Raj!'

Audience members will become immersed in a soundscape of spoken and recorded voices as they are served fine Bangladeshi cuisine by a troupe of traditional waiters & chefs.
